Serial rapist sentenced to 100 years for 2015 assaults

Randy Pitts pleaded guilty and was convicted for multiple sexual assaults

(Indianapolis, Ind.) Marion County Prosecutor Terry Curry announced that Randy Pitts has been convicted and sentenced for three rapes and an attempted rape that occurred during a ten-day period in July 2015. Pitts was sentenced today to serve 100 years in the Indiana Department of Correction. In September, Pitts pleaded guilty to three counts of Rape (Level 1 Felonies), Attempt Rape (Level 1 Felony) and Carrying a Handgun without a License (Class A Misdemeanor).

"We are pleased that an appropriate substantial sentence has been ordered for these violent, predatory acts," Prosecutor Curry commented. "The detectives who investigated these cases and our deputy prosecutors are to be commended for their perseverance and commitment on behalf of the assault victims."

In July 2015, Pitts committed a series of sexual assaults while armed with a handgun on the near eastside near East 17th Street and College Avenue. Pitts also admitted to an attempted armed sexual assault of a woman in the women's restroom at Circle Centre Mall in downtown Indianapolis.
